Thanks to its inventive and visionary chefs, myriad cultural influences, and an incredible natural bounty, the food in Puerto Rico is as exciting and diverse as the island itself. In fact, there's so much good food here that anyone who settles for mediocre resort fare instead of sampling the island's incredible culinary offerings should not be allowed on to an airplane to leave until they do. Whether you're after homestyle comida criolla, fresh-off-the-boat seafood, something elegant paired with a beautiful French wine or boundary-pushing gastronomy, there's a restaurant in Puerto Rico to suit your taste, mood, or price point. Here are a few of our favorites.

From sourcing the best organic ingredients directly from local farmers to the flawless execution of every single dish, 1919 is a serious culinary experience that stays with you long after you've left the island. The menu changes around five times a year, but you can expect fresh, vibrant modern Puerto Rican dishes that show off the island's diverse natural bounty. The wine list that accompanies that menu is just as powerful: 300+ bottles that hit highlights from France and Italy as well as lesser-known, but equally delicious wines from California, Spain and central Europe. Simply: This is the most elegant fine dining restaurant in Puerto Rico.
