

The Weekly Covet: Last Minute Winter Getaway Bucket List

The destinations our editors are dreaming of getting away to this Winter.

Once a week, we ask our editors to share the items they've been loving or lusting after—whether it's a new skincare product we're dying to try or a travel essential we can't live without. Consider "The Weekly Covet" your editor-approved wish list for beauty, travel, fashion, and everything in between.

Puerto Rico

"Go to Puerto Rico. Yes, it is safe to visit after a powerful earthquake earlier this month, according to the State Department and tourism officials. The southwest coast is still rebuilding, but the rest of the island, especially its main cities and attractions, were unaffected by the tremors. In fact, supporting PR's tourism industry, which employs nearly 80,000 people, is one way to help recovery efforts. The Condado Vanderbilt in San Juan has endured its share of hurricanes over the last century, and it's still a gem, boasting 1919, a superlative restaurant sourced only with local ingredients that's led by former Blue Hill chef Juan José Cuevas."—Erik Maza, Style Features Director
